

September 29- October 1

Columbus Ohio - Hyatt Regency

ohiolinux.org/registration

Welcoming all Free and Open Source Software professionals, enthusiasts, and everyone interested in learning more about Free and Open Source Software.

Professional training, Networking, Mentors, Career Track, Expo Hall, social events and more!

Keynote speakers are shown on the right.

Tarus Balog is the Saturday PM keynote speaker. He is the founder of The OpenNMS Group, the services company behind the popular open-source monitoring software.

Tarus is an outspoken evangelist for free and open source software. We await his viewpoint on how a free software project interacts with business—and its customers!

Máirín 'Mo' Duffy is the Saturday AM keynote speaker. She is a principal interaction designer at Red Hat as well as the team lead for Fedora's community design team. We look forward to hearing her insights about user experience and design and why these are important in FLOSS projects!

Karen M. Sandler is the Friday PM keynote speaker. She is the executive director of the Software Freedom Conservancy.

We are looking forward to hearing the thoughts gained from her many years of legal, community, and technical experience in free software.

The Ohio LinuxFest is a non profit, all volunteer organization that began in 2003 as a large inter-LUG (Linux User Group) meeting and has grown steadily.

